

Save The Date

"From the Genes to the Globe" Symposium Series Presents

The Last Mile to Malaria Eradication

Thursday, December 4, 2014

3:00pm - 5:00pm, Kresge G3, HSPH

A special symposium discussing multidisciplinary approaches to malaria control and elimination, and the path to eradication.

Please RSVP by emailing cmejia@hsph.harvard.edu

HOSTS

Matthias Marti, Associate Professor of Immunology & Infectious Diseases

Dyann Wirth, Richard Pearson Strong Professor & Chair, Department of Immunology & Infectious Diseases

MODERATORS

Barry Bloom, Harvard University Distinguished Service Professor & Joan L. & Julius H. Jacobson Professor of Public Health

Michael Reich, Taro Takemi Professor of International Health Policy

SPEAKERS

Caroline Buckee, Assistant Professor of Epidemiology

Marcia Castro, Associate Professor of Demography

Flaminia Catteruccia, Associate Professor of Immunology & Infectious Diseases

Jessica Cohen, Assistant Professor of Global Health

Manoj Duraisingh, Professor of Immunology & Infectious Diseases

Günther Fink, Associate Professor of International Health Economics

Sarah Volkman, Principal Research Scientist

POSTER SESSION & RECEPTION

5:00pm - 6:00pm François-Xavier Bagnoud Building
Lobby/Atrium, HSPH

The Symposium will be followed by a Malaria Research Poster Session and Networking Reception. Students and fellows from HSPH, HMS, GSAS, and affiliated hospitals are encouraged to attend and submit posters based on their work in applied, basic, and social sciences. The poster submission deadline is Sunday, November 23, 2014.

To submit a poster, visit <http://bit.ly/1tNgKpb>

